In a world that often feels fractured, there are moments that cut through the noise, reminding us of our strength when we stand together: resilience, courage, and a commitment to something greater than ourselves.

This year, at The Archewell Foundation, we’ve witnessed the transformative power of human connection—of people reaching across divides to uplift one another.

Our purpose is simple yet impactful: to show up, do good. To drive positive change, rally for communities in need, and nurture spaces where everyone is seen, valued, and supported. In 2024, we were honored to work alongside communities, families, and individuals who, despite facing tremendous hardship, are redefining what’s possible.

We are inspired by the families in The Parents’ Network, who have turned profound pain into purpose, advocating for a future where no parent has to experience the devastation caused by online threats to their children. They’re leading the charge for safer, thoughtfully designed digital spaces.

We are moved by the women of The Welcome Project, who create gatherings for those forced to leave their home countries. Together, they find strength and solace in new communities, building powerful support networks far from where their journeys began.

We are energized by visionary young leaders and innovators shaping a safer, more inclusive digital world. Their bold ideas are making waves on the world stage, transforming conversations and pushing boundaries.

Each story and connection deepens our belief in the power of coming together. As we look back on this year, we are grateful to the communities and partners who have joined us on this journey. Together, we are building a future of purpose, belonging, and joy—and we invite you to be part of it.

With hope and gratitude,

JAMES HOLT AND SHAUNA NEP
CO EXECUTIVE DIRECTORS, THE ARCHEWELL FOUNDATION

OUR PROGRAMS

Our Programs

Our work at The Archewell Foundation is underpinned by the core belief that mental health and our collective well-being are paramount.

We continue to activate this belief through our principal programs: The Archewell Foundation Parents' Network and The Welcome Project.

Earlier this year, we formally launched The Archewell Foundation Parents' Network, a community for parents and caregivers whose children have experienced online harm. This collective serves as a safe space for parents to come together, find healing, and take action as we work towards a safer and better online world.

In its second year, The Welcome Project has expanded to new locations, offering recently resettled women opportunities to connect and build community. Each project is addressing the intense social isolation faced by resettled women, providing them with a safe space and a sense of belonging.

Both core programs have positively impacted the mental health of parents and women by fostering community building as a key to our collective well-being. These programs will continue to offer safe spaces where individuals can find healing and joy together.

The Archewell Foundation Parents' Network

The Archewell Foundation Parents' Network is building resilience, trust, and community for trauma-affected families to inspire healing, hope, and a purpose-driven movement for change.

Following a public launch this year, The Parents' Network has expanded to serve families affected by online harm in the US, Canada, and the UK.

Members of The Parents' Network have experienced first-hand the pain and destruction caused by social media through harms done to their children. They have been through tragedy that no parent should ever have to experience, but far too many do.

This community provides a safe space for all parents and caregivers to navigate the complex digital world and is dedicated to preventing future harm from happening.

Our work continues to be grounded by real-world stories from young people and parents. Through our Insight Sessions, we have heard how families are thinking about the role of technology and its effects on our mental health. These insights guide our work to build a better online world and center the experiences of young people and parents as we work towards the creation of safer, more inclusive spaces.

“You feel so alone when something like this happens but the sense of connection when you do talk with someone that knows your pain is so meaningful. And that’s what The Parents’ Network has done for us – they’ve brought us together with other parents so we can share our stories, and even share our everyday lives. It’s just been amazing.”

- DARLA

“For the longest time we felt so alone and we struggled to find resources and we struggled to figure out what was happening. It’s been amazing to find other families and know it’s not just us. The other moms are so supportive. I know I can reach out to them and they’ll understand. I know they’re in this fight with us – trying to help other families.”

- ERIN

“What gives us hope is that we can connect with families that don’t judge us. I can call any one of these dads anytime during the day and they’ll stop what they’re doing and they’ll listen. For all practical purposes, we should not have ever met, but we all came together because of The Archewell Foundation, because of Harry and Meghan. They have given us a support group, a team – people that you can cry with, laugh with, have a drink with, cook with. And all of it is meaningful.”

BOGOTÁ, COLOMBIA: FORO FUTURO DIGITO RESPONSABLE

A key part of Prince Harry and Meghan, The Duke and Duchess of Sussex's August 2024 visit to Colombia, upon the invitation of Vice President Francia Márquez, was exploring the future of digital spaces and responsible technology. The Archewell Foundation is proud to lead these global conversations, as we work to build a better online world.

In Bogotá, Colombia, the Office of the Vice President hosted the Responsible Digital Future Summit at the Universidad EAN in alliance with The Archewell Foundation and Luminate Group, focused on discussing solutions to the harm faced by young people around the globe. The event brought together a diverse group of community members, experts, leaders, and activists, including members of the Responsible Technology Youth Power Fund, Trisha Prabhu, CEO of Re-Think and Sneha Revanur, President of Encode Justice.

In a panel focused on The Path Towards a Responsible Digital Future, The Duke and Duchess were joined by Vice President Francia Márquez and Nobel Peace Prize winner Maria Ressa to discuss the necessity of balancing social media usage with humanity and connection in order to create a safer digital environment. "With The Archewell Foundation, me and my wife believe that information integrity is a fundamental right," The Duke shared during the discussion.

The summit concluded with optimism towards finding solutions to improve the digital landscape through initiatives and change that will prioritize the well-being of individuals worldwide.

UNITED NATIONS MINISTERIAL CONFERENCE

In November 2024, members of The Archewell Foundation Parents' Network attended the UN Ministerial Conference on ending violence against children to speak about the effects of online harm and the urgent action needed to protect children around the world.

In a video address, The Duke and Duchess emphasized the importance of addressing the impact of online harm as a crucial step in the effort to end violence against children. Parents from The Archewell Foundation Parents' Network spoke throughout the conference, highlighting their lived experiences. The Archewell Foundation will continue to uplift this work and the vital perspectives of parents on the world stage.

CLINTON GLOBAL INITIATIVE

During the UN General Assembly in September 2024, The Archewell Foundation made a commitment to action at Clinton Global Initiative to address the effects of online harm through The Parents' Network.

The Archewell Foundation Parents' Network is working to systematically change the technology, design, and policies for social media that create an environment for dangerous internet use by children, by supporting and mobilizing the people most concerned – parents and caregivers.

“As a growing movement, The Parents' Network is committed to this journey. We need platforms that mirror our highest values, designed with safety in mind. But in the meantime, we can't wait. Our kids can't wait. We need to create programs that teach digital literacy, emotional intelligence and critical thinking. We need to equip our youth with the skills they need to identify and combat online threats. We need a better digital future—one that we deserve. We were promised a human experience, instead we've been a human experiment.”

- PRINCE HARRY, THE DUKE OF SUSSEX, CGI 2024

The Welcome Project

The Welcome Project continues to bring together recently resettled women to build more inclusive, connected communities. Now in its second year, the program has expanded to support more women and provide additional resources.

Each location of The Welcome Project meets regularly around a social activity – from cooking and sewing to swimming and hiking. Throughout the course of one year participating in The Welcome Project, 98% of our members reported an increased sense of social connection.

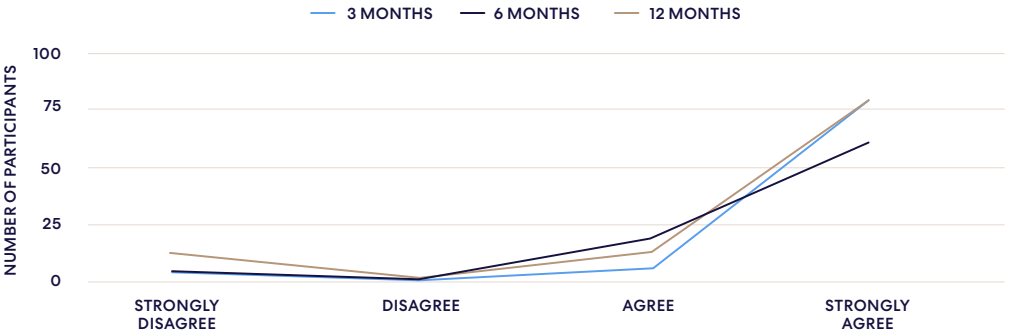

The program is built to be responsive to community needs and thus listening to the challenges faced by the women is a central aspect of our work. Many have raised the difficulties in accessing economic opportunities, employment support, and professional development. To address this, The Archewell Foundation has partnered with Upwardly Global, a national organization dedicated to helping immigrants and refugees restart their careers in the United States. Through this partnership, we are providing access to job coaching and career development resources for women in The Welcome Project.

PROGRAMS - THE WELCOME PROJECT

“Participating in this program helps increase my sense of social connection and/or engagements:

“Participating in this program has decreased my feelings of loneliness:

Each Welcome Project is led by women who tirelessly commit themselves to uplifting other women. This coalition of female leaders meet regularly to support one another and tackle new challenges faced by each community. Many of these leaders have been through the resettlement process themselves and bring their unique experience to ensure a culturally responsive and trauma-informed approach. As one leader shared, “Through The Welcome Project, the women learned new skills and culture, have improved their language proficiency, and have widened their social networks. They did not know one another, or other refugee newcomers for that matter, before being part of the program. Now they each have other to call on if they want or need. That connection contributes to a sense of belonging and community that has a positive impact on their lives.”

These spaces will continue to be safe havens for women as they navigate and rebuild their lives. We are proud to provide a way for women to share their stories and build community.

HELAL & HANIFA – WASHINGTON D.C.

Helal and Hanifa are gathering Afghan women in the Washington, D.C. and Arlington, VA area. Having resettled in the U.S. from Afghanistan themselves, the women had heartfelt conversations about the profound effects of using creative outlets as avenues for healing trauma. Through The Welcome Project, they’ve come together to connect their peers through photography and cooking. Their projects are amplifying the talents of the women in their network, and providing a space to share stories and their unique perspectives of the world that surrounds them.

“ I aim for this project to be a beacon of hope. As we nurture talents and cultivate support groups, we’re fostering connections and creating a tapestry of diverse voices that come together in harmony. This also isn’t just about coming together; it’s about building bridges, mending divides and weaving a community fabric that’s resilient, supportive and united in its quest for growth and understanding.”

- HELAL, THE WELCOME PROJECT

ARTOGETHER – OAKLAND, CA

ARTogether is gathering women in the Bay Area through an Arts & Support group. Their gatherings provide essential training, art materials, equipment, transportation, and childcare to enable the women to come together and create art together. The women have reported how these gatherings have improved their emotional well-being and provided a crucial sense of community and support.

“ The greatest benefits for the Afghan women of our program have been learning expressive arts and stress relief techniques and fostering social connections. The program has facilitated social networking and resource sharing, helping newcomers learn from others’ experiences, and understand that their struggles are common and often temporary. This has instilled hope for a better future for their children.”

- OAKLAND, CA WELCOME PROJECT

NEW AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF MASSACHUSETTS

New American Association of Massachusetts is bringing women together in Massachusetts through sewing gatherings. The women have had the opportunity to learn new skills together and regularly sell their creations at local markets. Two of the members have now started their own businesses to sell their creations throughout the area, and another resettled participant now supports the group full time to empower other women to enter their handmade items in craft fairs.

“ The women are much more confident, at ease and willing to challenge themselves. From the time we first started until present day the difference in self-confidence, self-agency, personal self-sufficiency is immeasurable.”

- LYNN, MA WELCOME PROJECT

REFUGEE WOMEN’S NETWORK – DECATUR, GA

Refugee Women’s Network is bringing together women in Georgia through a weekend hiking and outdoor activity Welcome Project. The program has ensured that all women have proper hiking equipment and leads safe and engaging activities for the women. They have been able to come together to explore their new home and discover nature together.

“ The program does more than just expose refugee and immigrant women to activities. They do so with a welcoming, culturally sensitive and women-centered approach that ensures participants feel safe to take positive risks, challenge themselves, and see themselves as strong, as leaders.”

- DECATUR, GA WELCOME PROJECT

Prioritizing Community Well-being

The Archewell Foundation’s work is rooted in fostering community and adapting to the evolving challenges of today’s world.

In moments of crisis and need, we show up and take action, investing time and resources to address the immediate care of communities, while creating meaningful bonds to help others thrive. With a core focus on mental health, we move quickly to respond to short-term needs and build strength and resilience for long-term well-being.

CARTAGENA, COLOMBIA: ESCUELA TAMBORES DE CABILDO

In August 2024, Prince Harry and Meghan, The Duke and Duchess of Sussex visited Colombia at the invitation of Vice President Francia Márquez. While in Cartagena, The Duke and Duchess visited Escuela Tambores de Cabildo, a drum school located on the beach of La Boquilla. The Archewell Foundation values the power of community, and Escuela Tambores de Cabildo stands as a powerful example of bridging generations and fostering unity. The Duke and Duchess donated new drumming sets to support the school’s growing enrollment and celebrate Afro- Colombian cultural heritage and community wellness.

The Duke and Duchess also visited San Basilio de Palenque, a historic cultural village outside Cartagena. The Archewell Foundation is proud to support this vibrant community, which is rich in history. Their visit not only celebrated the village’s heritage but also highlighted the enduring power of community spirit and connection.

LAS CRUCES: COLEGIO LA GIRALDA

One of the schools visited during the trip, Colegio La Giralda, welcomed The Duke and Duchess with traditional Colombian dance and performances. The Duke and Duchess had the chance to meet the students and tour the urban garden of the school, where they planted a walnut tree alongside the Vice President.

They also had the chance to learn about the school’s acclaimed socio-emotional gym, a unique program that provides a vital space for the students to explore and enhance their emotional well-being. The gym is run by and for students and features interactive activities to help students share emotions, resolve conflicts, and support each other’s mental health. The Archewell Foundation is proud to support the expansion of the socio-emotional gym program to ensure that the mental health of students is continually cared for and nurtured.

PRIORITIZING COMMUNITY WELL-BEING

GIANTS OF AFRICA

During their visit to Nigeria in May 2024, The Duke and Duchess traveled to Lagos to attend a basketball clinic at Ilupeju Senior Grammar School with Giants of Africa, an organization that empowers African youth through basketball, education, and mentorship. The clinic was hosted at an accessible court built by Giants of Africa, which allows for those in wheelchairs to participate in the sport. The Archewell Foundation believes in the power of play to transform a child’s life and has partnered with Giants of Africa to build a new adaptive court that will ensure equity and accessible sport for more than 2,000 youth in the community.

KABOOM!

Since first visiting Uvalde, Texas in 2022, following the tragic shooting at Robb Elementary School, The Archewell Foundation has continued a deep relationship with the local community. After seeing the need for a safe space for joy and healing, The Archewell Foundation, together with KABOOM! unveiled a playground for the community to enjoy. KABOOM! has built 12 playgrounds throughout Uvalde with a goal of building 25 playgrounds total to support the community. In March 2024, KABOOM!, The Archewell Foundation, and The Duke and Duchess came together to visit one of the play spaces with families from Uvalde and hosted a community day of unity and healing.

HUMANITY CREW

When disasters strike around the globe, Humanity Crew mobilizes quickly to deploy mental health professionals who are trained to intervene and provide trauma-informed care and support for all individuals. This vital resource ensures that psychological support is not forgotten in the wake of dangerous tragedy.

With support from The Archewell Foundation, Humanity Crew has provided trauma informed support to individuals in disaster-stricken regions including Gaza, Israel, Turkey, and Syria.

Uplifting Women and Girls

The Archewell Foundation's work is rooted in supporting our collective well-being, with a particular emphasis on gender equity and supporting women and girls.

We know that by empowering the most vulnerable members of our societies, we can affect change and break barriers to ensure that all members of our communities are heard and valued.

From our programs like The Welcome Project, to the global initiatives that ensure both the immediate needs and long-term success of girls are cared for and uplifted, we are activating this belief and investing in women and girls around the world.

ABUJA, NIGERIA: WOMEN IN LEADERSHIP

While in Abuja, Nigeria, The Archewell Foundation hosted a Women in Leadership event, featuring a conversation between Meghan, The Duchess of Sussex and Dr. Ngozi Okonjo-Iweala, Director-General of the World Trade Organization.

Bringing together women from across media, business, politics, and culture, the conversation focused on the importance of female leadership and offered empowering messages on the future of representation.

“Representation matters tremendously. You need to see it to believe it. That starts when you’re very young. I often find that whatever travels I’ve done, regardless if it’s Nigeria or another country around the world, oftentimes when women reach the peak of success, they leave. But you need to come back home. You need to at least be a familiar face for the next generation to say, ‘Oh, she looks like me. And I can be that.’ You still always want to come back home because that’s how you’re going to help shift any sort of generational pattern that might be stifling, especially for young girls who need to see someone who looks like them in that same position.”

- MEGHAN, THE DUCHESS OF SUSSEX

ABUJA, NIGERIA: THE GEANCO FOUNDATION

On their first stop of the trip to Nigeria, The Duke and Duchess visited Lightway Academy in Abuja to meet the incredible scholars of The GEANCO Foundation. The Archewell Foundation has previously partnered with The GEANCO Foundation to provide menstrual products and school supplies in 2023. An estimated 37 million women and girls in Nigeria experience period poverty, unable to access or afford menstrual hygiene products. As a result, millions of girls in the country miss school every month, crippling their educational advancement. The Archewell Foundation will continue to support women and girls in Abuja, with a donation to support menstrual health hygiene, in addition to training and curriculum from The GEANCO Foundation to provide students with the mental health support and health education they need to thrive.

CALI, COLOMBIA: AFRO-DESCENDANT WOMEN AND POWER

While in Cali, Colombia, The Duchess joined Vice President Francia Márquez for a panel discussion focused on uplifting women of African descent and empowering leaders. The conversation led with equity as a core principle and discussed the importance of ensuring that women and girls are heard, respected, and recognized in all aspects of life. As a key value of The Archewell Foundation, The Duchess emphasized how we invest in women as the solution – from empowering refugee women in The Welcome Project, to giving a voice to mothers in The Parents’ Network. By uplifting communities and valuing the input and voices of a diverse group of women, we can create an environment where girls grow up seeing how women are heard and valued.

WOMENS WELLNESS (SPA)CE

The Archewell Foundation is a Founding Partner and supporter of Ashley Biden’s Womens Wellness (Spa)ce, a trauma-informed wellness center for women in north Philadelphia. Drawing from her experience with the criminal justice system, Biden’s initiative is inspired by her work with Mural Arts’ Women’s Reentry Program, providing support and opportunities for formerly incarcerated women. The center aims to offer a safe haven and community for women impacted by trauma, providing resources such as nutritious food, exercise, meditation, and therapeutic interventions.

GIRLS INC. X #HALFTHESTORY

On International Day of the Girl 2024, The Archewell Foundation, alongside Pivotal Ventures and The Oprah Winfrey Charitable Foundation, announced a partnership to support Girls Inc. and #HalfTheStory. This partnership is providing 100,000 girls in the Girls Inc. network with the skills and tools they need to thrive in digital spaces with the SocialMediaU program. This program is rooted in play, creativity, and imagination, aimed at mitigating the negative impacts of technology while fostering human connection within and beyond digital environments.

MOMS FIRST & THE GEENA DAVIS INSTITUTE

With support from Meghan, The Duchess of Sussex and The Archewell Foundation, Moms First and the Geena Davis Institute on Gender in Media released a report earlier this year titled, Rewriting Motherhood: How TV Represents Moms and What We Want to See Next. Through detailed research, the report covers the portrayal of motherhood in television and provides guidance and recommendations for how entertainment can uplift diverse perspectives and experiences to positively impact our beliefs about motherhood and gender equity.

While speaking at SXSW in Austin, TX this past year, The Duchess spoke about the importance of representation in all aspects of life and the role that community plays in fostering a sense of belonging and empowerment for women.

“ My past experience as an actress, and now today as a producer and mother, have amplified my belief in the critical importance of supporting women and moms both behind the lens and in front of it. This report about the portrayal of mothers in entertainment highlights the gaps we need to fill to achieve true representation in the content we create and consume, and I’m honored to support this work through The Archewell Foundation.”

- MEGHAN, THE DUCHESS OF SUSSEX

Investing in Information Integrity

Amidst a rapidly changing information and media landscape, where misleading content breeds confusion, erodes trust, and deepens divisions, The Archewell Foundation is championing information integrity and ethical journalism as a fundamental right.

In 2023, The Archewell Foundation joined the inaugural Press Forward coalition, a commitment to uplift communities – geographic and demographic - and strengthen ethical journalism across the U.S. over the next five years. This support aims to close longstanding inequities in journalism and support solutions to ensure all citizens are informed and engaged in their everyday lives. To date, over $500 million has been invested through this coalition of partners to strengthen communities and democracy around the world.

We are committed to ensuring that information remains trustworthy, that justice is served for those systemically undermined and disempowered, safety is provided for those harmed, and equal representation is secured in decision-making processes that affect everyone.

THE MARKUP

The Archewell Foundation has been proud to invest in The Markup, a nonprofit newsroom that investigates how powerful institutions are using technology to change our society. Over the past year, they have done significant work to protect communities vulnerable to the spread of mis- and disinformation.

Their ongoing work has frequently addressed the crisis of news deserts: communities that are lacking access to credible, trustworthy information. However, in the past year, they have focused increasingly on the pressing issue of news mirages: communities who have a lack of access to reliable information and whose news is now flooded with mis- and disinformation, seeking to manipulate and create a divide amongst communities. In 2024, The Markup has intensified its efforts to both produce high-quality journalism and educate communities on recognizing technological manipulation and how to access trustworthy information.

URL MEDIA

Through The Archewell Foundation’s support, URL Media has mobilized BIPOC communities to combat misinformation in 2024. Through a combination of local and international reporting from a network of partners, they have amplified coverage including how misinformation and disinformation campaigns often target communities of color. They continue to host convenings and talks focused on advocating for better media coverage.

SUSTAINABLE MEDIA CENTER

Sustainable Media Center is giving young media consumers and creators the power, actions, and agency to demand change in how media treats them. With The Archewell Foundation’s support, they are building new actions and supporting NextGen activities with resources to inspire positive change.

CIVIC NEWS COMPANY

Through our commitment to ensuring all communities have access to ethical and local journalism, The Archewell Foundation has supported Civic News Company, a nonprofit organization that publishes Chalkbeat, Votebeat, and future local “civic news” beats. Each newsroom covers a single topic, though local reporters live in the communities they serve.

Civic News has employed over 60 reporters across 12 states and is now one of the country’s largest nonprofit news organizations. Their work to educate communities on local issues and important civic information has reached millions of Americans who are vulnerable to the spread of mis- and disinformation.

Collaborating for Impact

The Archewell Foundation is working to ensure communities around the world have the tools and resources they need to thrive. Through key partnerships with organizations and leaders, we are collaborating to build meaningful initiatives and drive long term change.

NAACP-ARCHEWELL DIGITAL CIVIL RIGHTS AWARD

The Archewell Foundation has partnered with the NAACP on the Digital Civil Rights Award to highlight and uplift people who are transforming the digital world for the better. Together we celebrate the people and organizations at the forefront of the civil rights movement online, recognizing a new generation of leaders who are creating transformational change at the intersection of social justice and technology — working to advance civil and human rights.

In 2024, this award was given to Dr. Joy Buolamwini, founder of the Algorithmic Justice League, an organization leading the way to overcome racist and sexist biases in artificial intelligence systems.

“ I am incredibly humbled and honored to join such an illustrious group of recipients for the Digital Civil Rights Award from the NAACP and The Archewell Foundation. With the rapid proliferation of AI, it is more crucial than ever to ensure that these algorithms acting as gatekeepers serve us all and do not impede on the civil rights of marginalized communities. This award will help the Algorithmic Justice League continue our work to prevent AI harms, connect the excoded to resources and raise awareness about AI's impact on society through our advocacy, art and research.”

- DR. JOY BUOLAMWINI, FOUNDER OF THE ALGORITHMIC JUSTICE LEAGUE

RESPONSIBLE TECHNOLOGY YOUTH POWER FUND

The Responsible Technology Youth Power Fund is supporting the next generation of leaders pioneering innovation in technology and advocacy to make our online world more inclusive, safe, responsible, and accountable for all.

In April 2024, The Archewell Foundation hosted a two-day convening for the inaugural cohort of the Responsible Technology Youth Power Fund. This youth-led gathering featured inspiring speakers from the organizations, as well as trailblazers such as Nabiha Syed, a partner of The Archewell Foundation and former winner of the NAACP-Archewell Digital Civil Rights Award. Attendees joined sessions that focused on intergenerational collaboration, building their organization's narrative, and how to scale proven solutions. This inspiring group of youth leaders continues to work towards a better digital future, while navigating a changing landscape.

The Responsible Technology Youth Power Fund continues to lead the way in youth-led solutions towards building a better online world. Over the next 12 months a new cohort will have an enhanced focus on addressing safety in AI, solutions to climate change, and uplifting mental health and well-being for teenagers in digital spaces.

“ RTYPF’s funding has enabled us to invest in a new initiative, the ReThink Citizens Youth Coalition, which is set to give youth that have engaged with our other offerings, e.g., the curriculum and our workshops, a space in which to develop, test, and build their own anti-hate solutions.”

-RETHINK CITIZENS YOUTH COALITION

Acknowledgements

We are honored to work with incredible partners and individuals who make the work featured in this report possible.

We hope the stories of the past year inspire and encourage action as we carry out our mission to show up and do good.
